Misses Julia Castle, Lucy Newkirk, Mabel Van Camp and Lucy Bray.

—Miss Francis E. Willard, the great temperance worker who attended the convention here of the W. C. T. U., has written a beautiful letter to the Union Signal in regard to the meeting. She says: "I never saw a finer convention than this state evolved last week in beautiful Sedalia. I never saw more quick-brained practical women." Going on a little further she pays a glowing tribute to Mrs. Clara Hoffman and others, and thus speaks of the press: "Mrs. Hoffman's address, though written out after her arrival, is pronounced masterly, by the city press and given in full. Indeed the papers have devoted more space than has ever before been granted our society at any convention either state or national. She also says, speaking of Missouri, 'Many daughters have done virtuously but thou excellest them all.'"

—The Cincinnati "Volksblatt" of June 24th, speaking of the commencement exercises of the college of music, held the evening of the 23rd, has this to say: "The most difficult duet from 'The Prophet,' was sung in good style by Misses Carrie Moore and Helen Gallie. Miss Gallie's good dramatic voice again excited great admiration."

—The Cincinnati Sun of the same date, after speaking of the immense throng of people present at Music Hall to witness the commencement exercises of the college of music says: "In the vocal duet from 'Le Prophete,' one of Meyerbeer's masterpieces, Misses Carrie Moore and Helen Gallie, made a decided success. Miss Gallie has a contralto voice of such extraordinary force and weight that it stands in need of constant moderation, yet she has made such progress in her art that her scale is comparatively equal and her execution surprisingly agile. Besides this she sings in tune and that proves a musical ear."

—A number of young people of this city, left Friday morning for the shores of that classic river, "Flat creek," where they spent a delightful day picnicking, fishing, eating a fine dinner and otherwise having an enjoyable time. There were about fourteen in the party, among them, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dean, Misses Julia Stock, Josie and Jessie Wright, — Hill, Geo. and Frank Waller, Leonard Robinson, Charles West, Everett Farnham, John Hill and one or two others.

—Mrs. T. T. McGhee entertained a pleasant party of young people Thursday evening in honor of Miss Mary Tebb, of Kentucky, who is at present her guest. The refreshment tables were nicely prepared with creams, fruits, cakes, etc., and with games and music the evening proved most enjoyable.

—Among the guests were: Misses Lillie Byler, Julia Stock, Lizzie and Mary Lampton, Mattie Kennedy and Messrs. C. West, R. Gray, E. Farnham, E. Haney and L. Byler.

—Misses Emma and Kittie Kidd; assisted by their sister, Mrs. Dora Pattison, gave a pleasant musical and social entertainment at their residence on Kentucky street, last Thursday evening at which a large number of guests were present. Prof. Seltzer, Miss May Cobine and others furnished some fine music. Refreshments of cake and cream were served and all enjoyed the affair exceedingly. Among the guests were:

—Misses May Cobine, Dora Cartwright, Mr. and Mrs. Littlefield, Mrs. Anna Felix, Mrs. Mathews, Grace Mathews, May Wallace, Mrs. J. P. Seltzer, Mr. and Mrs. J. King, Messrs E. A. Holmes, Leonard Robinson and a number of others.

—Mrs. L. W. Welch handsomely entertained a number of friends at her pleasant residence on East Broadway last Thursday evening in honor of Mrs. H. M. Carr, a talented lady of Parsons, who has been her guest during the past week.

—After a careful and nicely served tea, an enjoyable season was spent in listening to some very fine recitations as given by Mrs. Carr, among these being "The Legend of St. George," "An Idyl of Battle Hollow," "The Potter's Song" from Longfellow, "The Frenchman and the Flea Powder," "An Incomplete Revelation" and several others. All of these were given in a manner which marked the perfect elocutionist and the guests enjoyed the occasion much. In addition to her other talents, Mrs. Carr is a fine vocalist and musician, and has made many friends who will warmly welcome her to Sedalia when she comes again.

The guests present were: Dr. and Mrs. T. Solis, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Owens, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hansberger, Mr. and Mrs. E. Shuman, J. R. Owens and others.

PICNIC.

Quite a pleasant Fourth of July celebration was given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Todd, west of Sedalia. At an early hour Mr. Todd sent conveyances to town to take out their most intimate friends.

The day was spent with music, games and other amusements.

At noon choice refreshments were served on the elegant lawn surrounding the house. The afternoon was spent in fishing, target-shooting, foot races, etc. Among the children, who won the prizes in the foot races, were, Miss Josie Hickman, Master Willie Tritt, and Cad Todd; Misses, Maude Tritt and Jennie Barberger; ladies, Mrs. Neeson; gentlemen, Mr. John Todd. The evening was spent until quite late, with fireworks and dancing the Virginia reel, when about twenty persons left for Sedalia well pleased with their day's pleasure, and pronouncing Mr. and Mrs. Todd a most excellent host and hostess.

—Fay Templeton and company sang at Milwaukee, Wis., the past week. The company has been much improved by the addition of Harry Brown and wife, (Lillie West), who recently joined them. They will proceed immediately to California, where they will sing during the summer.

SOL SMITH STEPS OFF.

Sol Smith, the well known actor, died Thursday morning last at his residence, 148 West Fourteenth street, New York. Mr. Smith had been suffering for several weeks and his condition was deemed so serious a few days ago that his wife was traveling with Lester Wallack's "Lady Clare" company, was summoned to his bedside. The news of the comedian's death was received with astonishment by the few actors who still remain in the city. Many of them were not aware that he was ill. Mr. Smith was about 45 years old, having been born in Kentucky in 1839.

He was the son of Sol Smith, the celebrated comedian, who became famous through the west and south between 1830 and 1850. The father was also a member of the old theatrical firm of Smith & Caldwell. These two gentlemen were the pioneer managers of the west, and their companies played to houses in all of the principal cities west and south. Mr. Smith was also a brother of the late celebrated actor, Mark Smith. The deceased made his first appearance in New York during the season of 1863 at the Winter Garden theatre, playing the Hebrew character of Nathan, in the burlesque, "Leap." Subsequently he was attached to various companies and played in the principal cities of the country, his specialty being that of an eccentric comedian. He acquired a reputation above the average in that line of business. Eight years ago he married a widow, daughter of Sedly Smith, the old manager of the Boston museum, who had acquired something of a reputation of an actress in California. Mr. Smith was a good musical actor, and four years ago made quite a hit in Brooklyn as Sir Joseph in "Pinafore" and in "Our Boarding House." He also attracted considerable attention as Shouter while his wife assumed the role of Mrs. Culver. During the last theatrical season, Mr. Smith scored quite a success at Tony Pastor's theatre by his rendition of the character of the husband in "Vim," with Neil Burgess as the leading actor, winning great applause. The dead actor, besides his wife, leaves a stepson and daughter.

The Iron Trade.

St. Louis, July 5.—The Age of Steel publishes to-day over ninety letters from leading manufacturers of engines, iron and wire of working machinery, steam pumps, hardware specialties and iron roofing in the principal cities east of St. Louis, setting forth the present condition of these industries and giving reports as to the outlook of the trade in these lines during the next six months. It appears from these letters that the condition of business in these industries is not as bad as has been represented, and that the aggregate of sales for the first six months of this year is considerably greater than those for the last half of 1883. Engine builders have been well engaged, and in some instances are behind with their orders. Manufacturers of wire are working to their fullest capacity. There appears to be more business depression in the east than west. The present dullness of trade in some departments and low scale of prices prevailing is attributed to a want of confidence induced by the late failures in New York and uncertainty as to the tariff legislation and political struggle now fairly commenced. The majority of the correspondents anticipate a fair trade during the remainder of the year.

SWEET SPRINGS SPRAY.

Scenes and Sketches From a Popular Summer Resort.

Leisure Hours Among Legal Lights and Lovely Lasses.

A Bohemian's Budget of Brevities Sent the Bazoos.

Sweet Springs, July 5.—The season at this point may now be said to be fully opened, as every incoming train bears a complement of guests, and the jolly drummer's eight-by-ten grip-sack, and the society lady's mammoth Saratoga shake hands with the big black, burly porters many times each day.

This week the most notable occurrence has been the Bar association meeting which took place Tuesday and Wednesday.

Big wigs from all over the state were here and as they were here as much for recreation as legal lore they evidently enjoyed the situation.

Among these, the most eminent lawyers of the country, there could not help but be men of grand intellect and even in conversation, keen wit, apt illustration and fine points were conspicuously plentiful.

The banquet which was given Tuesday evening was an elaborate affair, the menu being a carefully prepared one not only in its epicurean serving, but in the manner in which it was printed, the paper being a delicate cream tinted parchment with scarlet letters and bordering.

THE BANQUETING TABLES

were in the form of a hollow square and each individual's name was placed on the plate allotted to him.

Eighty gentlemen sat down at once and as the tables were adorned with flowers and fruits and napkins folded so as to represent boats, shells and fans, the effect was fine.

A novel feature of the banquet, worth mentioning, was the drill of the waiters. Each man fell into line under the direction of the caterer and the relays were brought in with the regularity and precision marking the well trained soldier.

During the progress of the banquet, music lent its sweetest strains and after the wine came in and conviviality began to reign, laughter and applause made the hotel building ring again.

It is said one dignified old judge remarked to a comrade that the younger men were on the "verge of getting drunk," and this might have been possible as it was told and re-told during the convention that the law was a "high" calling and if a practical illustration was given, surely it was pardonable, especially as the better halves were all at home taking care of the children.

It is said, too one fat old judge got stuck in a window, mistaking it for a door, another tried to open his room door with a toothpick, another pocketed his napkin, while still another wanted to bet five dollars that he could "kick higher than any man in Missouri." There may have been no truth in these rumors however, "champagne lies" probably invented for the occasion.

Entre nous though, some ladies who passed through one of the upper halls at six o'clock the next morning declared that they were obliged to cover their eyes and peep through their fingers because some open doors revealed,

"Sights not strange perhaps, But better left with some slight covering."

After the departure of the barristers, a lonely feeling for a short time seemed to hover around with a "black bat" air, but soon new arrivals brought about renewed activity and in a short time the gaps were filled and life and good cheer and flirtations and children and widows and maids and maneuvering mamas and spring water, fresh air and gaiety were prevalent on all hands.

DANCING PARTIES ARE IN VOGUE, and the bath house is well patronized. Apropos, your correspondent while swinging around the circlediscovered something worth relating concerning the fair feminine bathers, and, just like a "horrid man" will tell what by careful computing he has summed up: First, nine out of ten women are bow-legged, four out of six have thick ankles, six out of eight have too much fullness about the waist, seven out of eleven are too broad across the hips, six out of seven have over-lapping toes, eleven out of twelve have corns, and only one in twenty-five has the graceful proportions of a Venus.

Don't imagine, young and unsophisticated Paul, that Virginia is all she looks for, she isn't by any means, and as an actual fact, here is just what one of the dear creatures put on after leaving the bath:

First, she donned a curious looking little garment with short sleeves and pockets in front, then she slipped on a pair of "surcingle" hose, ran down and caught on to a pair of red hose, then she ran on something which had the appearance of a pair of "pillow cases," then she slipped on a red corset, over this a another waist with short sleeves and lots of lace fixings, then she boosted on a hoop skirt, above this reared a big "Globe-Democrat," a little "beyond," an article designed like a rat trap, over this a balloon-shaped garment with a frilled bottom, and at last, covering the entire "syndicate," a dress with seventeen buttons up the front, four boucous on the bottom, a big pannier on the back and a monstrous sash tied in a bow with loops four feet long by two wide.

Then when this was all done and her bangs had been taken from under a silk handkerchief, which she had wound round her head like an Arab chief, her slippers were wiped off, her face powdered, her eyebrows prized off with a wetted finger, a big bunch of flowers pinned at her waist, her bracelets clasped around her arms, her earrings hooked through, her handkerchief stuck through her belt, she grabbed a fan with a big red rose on one side and—she was dressed and ready to show that hateful Mrs. Jones she could take the starch out of her daughter as easy as she could turn a hand-spring.

Some notable people are expected here this season. Mrs. Vest is already here inspecting her new cottage. Gov. and Mrs. Crittenden were here this week. There are several heiresses, one handsome widow, and, in fact, an unusual interest is being taken in the place.

SPRINGS NOTES.

—Miss Dora Hall, daughter of Col. Hall, one of the hotel proprietors, is said to be the best ten pin player here.

—In my letter next week I will give you some pen portraits of the guests stopping here and until then I am, yours,

—A large number of guests are expected to-morrow from Independence, Sedalia, Kansas City and other local points.

—The dental convention begins here next week and everybody anticipates if not "wailing," at least "gnashing of teeth."

—The Fourth was tremendously hot, but Col. Hall kept a palm leaf fan going and the hotel was as cold as a "cold icicle."

—Mr. J. W. Williams the handsome book keeper, will teach the benighted youth attending the Chase school in Kansas City next winter.

—Miss Myra Fielder, of Kansas City, one of the most popular young ladies who ever patronized the Springs, will be here again in the near future.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lon V. Stephens, of Boonville, came in yesterday morning. Mrs. Stephens is a charming woman and has many friends here.

—Miss Anna May Fox, of Paris, Miss Ida Bailey, of Monroe City, and Miss Delia Hardcastle, of Sedalia, are chief among the belles.

—Dame rumor says that Miss Maggie Campbell, who is here, is soon to wed Mr. Johnson, better known as the "Diamond King." Both parties hail from Kansas City.

—Mr. J. P. Lane, manager of the Western Union Telegraph company, and bride, are guests here. The gentleman married a young lady from Lexington, Kentucky, who is both handsome and intelligent.

—Many of the fair sex make it a point to get weighed every morning after breakfast. One woman who said she had only eaten three rolls, a slice of steak, six potatoes, a fried egg, three corn-dodgers and a cup of coffee for her breakfast, found on being weighed that she had gained five pounds since the day before.

"COMMERCIAL."

—Quincy, Cal.—The Plumas National, says, that Cash Brown was suffering severely with a bruised foot, in bed, but one application of St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain reliever, cured him in fifteen minutes.

GAILEY GAB.

GAILEY, Mo., July 5.

—Mr. Cyrus Newkirk is building another mammoth barn on his ranch near here.

—A fine rain fell last night and will do immense good to the growing corn crop.

—Miss Lollie Thomas, having finished her school near Clifton, has returned home to spend vacation.

—Miss Annie Holladay, who has been visiting at Col. Crawford's, returned this week to her home at Buncheon.

—Mr. J. W. Knight, late from the "Kingdom of Calloway," has been engaged to teach the winter term of the Gailey public school.

—The oats crop is seriously injured by rust. Not more than half a crop will be realized where a short time ago a large crop was expected.

—Miss Ross and Miss Potter, from Clifton City, Cooper county, have been staying a few days with their friends, the Misses Thomas, near Gailey.

—Harvest has commenced in earnest, and the farmers will be busy as bees for a few weeks, while the tradesmen will pass the time lounging on their counters and fighting flies.

—A select company of the elite from this immediate vicinity met together at the Green Ridge picnic on the Fourth and had a charming time, getting all the enjoyment possible to be had from such an occasion. WHAT THE DEACON WOULD LIKE TO KNOW.

—How Milt looked when he came out of the pond?

—How Mr. K. likes to be taken for a Methodist circuit rider?

—If Miss K. can't run a pretty good lick with a Mother Hubbard on?

—How Will and Jim felt when the lively horse kicked the buggy all to smash?

—If the old party in the dining stand at the Green Ridge picnic is through eating yet?

—If the young lady believes really and truly that Grant is the "sweetest, dearest and best fellow in the world?"

—If Milt's arm wasn't out of place when the two gentlemen met him last night driving in the suburbs of Sedalia?

Don't Use Liniments or Ointments.

One Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster is better than all the greasy compounds you can carry. Twenty-five cents.

The Weed Ordinance.

A BAZOOITE was yesterday talking to Mayor Rickman in regard to the weed ordinance, and was informed by his honor that the ordinance would be enforced this week. Wherever there are weeds growing over the sidewalk the owner of the property adjoining will be notified to cut them, and if the order is not obeyed they will be arrested and fined. The citizens should have the weeds cut before they are notified. It does not cost much and greatly enhances the beauty of the city.

Missing.

Mrs. C. D. Wonsor has been missing from her home at Brownington, Missouri, since June 1st, on which day she disappeared and has not been heard from up to this date. She came with her husband from Illinois, some two years ago and has since resided with her parents three miles southeast of Brownington. At the time of her disappearance she was in ill health and her friends fear she has met with foul play.

To Bookbinders.
